

PRIVACY

Cookies:

This website uses technical cookies exclusively for its own administration. We do not use cookies to store preferences, compile statistics or enable marketing activities or advertising.

The cookies used are not persistent, but are only valid for the current session.

The site cannot be displayed correctly if cookies are not accepted.

Log data:

As soon as the website is accessed, some data is stored in the logs. We therefore receive technical information about the origin (usually; country of origin) of the website access, about the exact IP addresses, about the operating system used, about the browser used and about the possible source of origin. We require this basic information for the smooth technical handling of the website.

However, we do not use any other functions to combine this information with data from other sources. We also do not make this information available to any external operator. We also do not use any Google analysis tools that may pass on your data.

Personal data:

If you make an enquiry or book an event, the necessary data you provide will be stored for the purpose of processing your enquiry or booking. We treat your data confidentially and in accordance to the law. You have the right to request the content, do corrections, block or remove these data free of charge by email. The person legally responsible for these personal data is: Roland Wimmer (info@mountain-guide.net).

The personal data received will not be passed on to third parties. If you have made a bank transfer using a payment function on the website, this data has been communicated to the relevant external service (e.g. Stripe or Paypal) and is not directly managed by the website operator.

The handling of these data is therefore the responsibility of the external company that has taken over the service. The name of this provider is clearly and unambiguously communicated during the payment process.

All page views of this website will take place via a secure interface, which is defined as an SSL certificate.

The basis for the handling of the data is Art. 13 D.Lgs. 196/2003 and Art. 13 and 14 of the EU Regulation 2016/679 (GDPR).